DETAILED ACTION

1. This action is in response to Applicant's amendment received on 10/23/06.

Priority

2. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-14, 17-18 and 26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Farag et al. (US 2002/0028418). In re claim 1, Farag discloses the use of a database for the storage of data (paragraph 0038), said database comprising dental data concerning universally applicable dentition-specific and tooth-specific features wherein the data illustrate real teeth as images in digitized form (paragraph 0038) and said digitized form involves dentition-specific and tooth-specific features including tooth family-specific characteristics (123, Figure 8). As to claim 2, the dental data are associated with an actual person (paragraph 0038). As to claims 3 and 6, the dentition-specific and tooth-specific features comprise data representing number, position, character, and anomalies of teeth and their cooperation with each other (123, Figure 8). In re claims 4-5 and 7-8, Farag discloses producing a physical cast of the dentition-specific structure that is individualized to the patient (paragraph 0037). As to claim 9, additional data can be stored relating to dental design features (paragraph 0093). As to claim 10, the database is located directly on the premises (124, Figure 1) and can also be situated any place in the world and accessed by telecommunication means (paragraphs 0025/0029). As to claim 11, the database is equipped with an input unit and (116) an output unit (112). As to claim 12, the input unit comprises a keyboard (116), display means and a monitor (112) since the display means can be used to view what is being inputted by the keyboard. As to claim 13, the database is accessible by a user with the aid of input and display unit (paragraph 0027). As to claim 14, a computer program supports interaction between the input unit, display unit, and database (paragraphs 0026/0027). As to claims 17 and 18, the data of the database is used to construct a tooth model (paragraph 0095) and wherein the tooth model includes an outer surface specified by means of the data, wherein the data used for this purpose is taken from the database. In re claim 26, the database is used in a method (300) of conceiving the tooth model whose external shape is constructed from the data, said method comprising taking data from the data base and forming an image of a tooth model on display means (Figure 8), and with help of the image, input, and output devices, producing the model (Figure 3). Examiner notes that Applicant does not positively claim a method of conceiving the tooth model. As a result, the content of the claim is considered as functional language, whereby statements of intended use and other functional statements do not impose any structural limitations on the claims distinguishable over the prior art of record. Similarly, Examiner notes that claims 13 and 15 are predominantly recitations of functional language and hence the examination of which follows the same guidelines outlined above.

Art Unit: 3732

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 15 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Farag in view of Paiz (US 2001/0037304). In re claim 15, Farag discloses the database as previously described, but fails to disclose an exchange of data between the user and the operating terminal is only possible with the aid of a payment system. Paiz, however, teaches providing data to a user through a computer network system in exchange for payment (claim 11). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of Applicant's invention to make the exchange of data only possible with the aid of a payment system in order to control user access and collect payment for said access as taught by Paiz. As to claim 16, Farag discloses the computer program synthesizes new data from selected data (paragraph 0031).

Response to Arguments

5. Examiner herein acknowledges and approves all claim amendments sufficient to overcome the previously made rejections under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph. Accordingly, said rejections under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, have been withdrawn.

6. Applicant's arguments filed 10/23/06 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant asserts that Farag fails to suggest a data base for the storage of data whereby the data base includes dental data concerning universally applicable dentition-specific features and universally applicable tooth-specific features, wherein the dental data illustrate real teeth as images in digitized form. However, Examiner points out, as stated in the rejection above, that Farag indeed discloses the use of a database for the storage of data (paragraph 0038), wherein the dental data illustrate digitized images (i.e. 275/285) of real teeth. Examiner notes that such 3-D digital images of a patient's dentition – such as the one shown in Figure 8 (123) – clearly involve dentition-specific features, tooth-specific features and structural properties. Hence, these dental data images anticipate Applicant's claims that the digitized form of the data shows the features outlined above.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

Art Unit: 3732

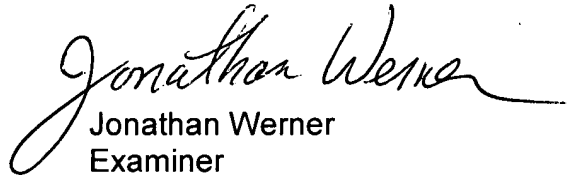

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
